

Uniform Mitigation Verification Form Data Call

Frequently Asked Questions

- 1. May I submit a filing reporting bulk submissions of uniform mitigation verification inspection forms (1802 form) within one template? If yes, does the template allow for “data dumps?”

Yes. The filing system allows the company to report multiple 1802 forms within one template. Each row within the template represents one 1802 form. For ease of filing, the template permits the company to paste or “dump” data within the template.

- 2. What are the maximum number of rows/number of inspection forms that may be reported within one template file?

The company may report up to 1,500 rows within one template. The Insurance Regulation Filing System (IRFS) will permit the company to create new filings to upload multiple templates.

- 3. What specific event triggers when a data submission must be made?

A data submission should be made within 60 days of the effective date of a new policy with an 1802 form or an 1802 form related rate change, whichever occurs later. The company does not need to resubmit the data each renewal, unless the information on the form changes.

- 4. How will the office handle data validations, especially when data may be missing or illegible from the form received from the policyholder?

The data collection process will have very limited validations, understanding that the insurer may receive illegible or incomplete submissions. Insurers should make every effort to submit the information as provided on the 1802 form.

- 5. Are insurers expected to send corrections if it determines errors in the original submission?

Yes, insurers should send corrections once an error is determined.

- 6. Has the office considered extending the reporting requirement?

Yes. Currently, the April 1st effective date stands. The office is providing a survey element with the data call to allow insurers to explain any issues they are having reporting and their plans for resolving those issues.

- 7. Where does the company file the 1802 form data?

All submissions for 1802 form data must be uploaded within the Insurance Regulation Filing System \(IRFS\).
